Biography: Henry (Penghui) Zhang, originally from Ordos, China, currently a second-year Master of Architecture student at University of Pennsylvania, where he acquired a comprehensive understanding of architectural principles. His prior education at Pratt Institute, where he majored in interior design, gave him a valuable perspective on space planning and a solid foundation in the principle of design. Furthermore, he gained practical experience as an assistant interior designer at PTW Architects in Beijing, contributing to a resort design and residential project. His internship at Gensler Chicago, this summer, focused on a residential project in Miami, and provided him invaluable real-world insights into the intricacies of housing design and community development.
